

Supply Chains

While the Alameda-Weehawken Burrito Tunnel is celebrated for giving our east coast brethren access to the best San Francisco has to offer, a large-scale piece of art nearby celebrates more traditional sources of food. Trace where these foods come from, and you might discover what powers the global delivery network.

This is a location puzzle. You may not be able to solve it without identifying the appropriate location. You can find what you need near Dig Site ALPHA, on the way to Dig Site BETA. Note that the location is in an active parking lot; please be mindful of traffic.

